A Social Learning Parent-Toddler Group

Play is a child’s world, and you are your child’s best playmate

This relational social skills playgroup is for children 18 months to 3 years of age who are experiencing developmental delays, autism, behavioral emotional challenges, and sensory processing issues. Parents and staff are used as guides toward children’s growth and development. This relational approach aims to stimulate social-emotional growth, language development and self-regulation skills needed for school readiness. Self-regulation strategies are presented in the context of play, music, and fun social activities.
